Farmington History

Incorporated in 1872

In 1856 - just five years after the Treaty of Mendota opened the area for settlement - the Dakota Weekly Journal, an early Minnesota territory newspaper, said this about Farmington:

“This place is rightly named, for it looks like a village of farms. Good soil, good water, good timber and intelligent citizens is their wealth.”

This “village of farms” in Empire township, the heart of Dakota County, was initially settled by pioneer families from New York and later by Civil War veterans who became Farmington’s first merchants, manufacturers, doctors, lawyers and educators that provided goods and services to the community and the surrounding townships.

In 1872 Farmington became the second community to incorporate and organize a municipal government in Dakota County. For 138 years the City of Farmington has served the needs and interests of its residents by providing quality public services, personal and property protection, attractive amenities and a healthy environment.
